Financial projections are hypothetical in nature. Stock market performance calculations are based on an average constant rate of return. In reality, financial markets fluctuate and, therefore, final calculations for portfolio return must be based on actual results that reflect these changes. Periodic adjustments are required based on these market fluctuations, economic conditions as well as economic outlook.

There are risks associated with investing. Investing in stocks, bonds, exchange traded funds, mutual funds, and money market funds involve risk of loss. Principal loss is possible. Some high risk funds may use leverage, which will accentuate gains and losses. Foreign investing involves special risks, including a greater volatility and political, economic and currency risks and differences in accounting methods. A firm's past investment performance is not a guarantee or predictor of future investment performance.
